FOR VIOLATION OF THE ERDMAN ACT

Chief Train Dispatcher Scott, of Louisville and Nashville, Held for Federal Court.

FIGHT OF THE TELEGRAPHERS

They Charge That Scott Violated All the Provisions of the Act, The Defense.

(By Associated Press.)
LOUISVILLE, KY., August 1.—United States Commissioner Cassin to-day held J. H. Scott, chief train dispatcher of the Louisville and Nashvillo Railroad Company, in $300 bond to answer at the October term of the United States District Court for alleged violation of the Erdman arbitration law.

man arbitration law.

The Erdman act, which applies to employes engaged in the moving of interstate commerce, provides that no employer or agent shall require any agreement from an employe to abatula from joining a lalor union; that no employe shall be threatened with loss of employment for jobing or jernalning a member of a union, and that no employe or applicant for employment shall be blacklisted or discriminated against for amiliating with a union.

ing with a union.

Members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers filed complaint, tostifying that Scott had violated all of the provisions of the act.

scott had violated all of the providing of the act.

Scott testified that certain acts complained of were done by direction of his superiors. Attorneys for the defense set up the plea that telegraphers are not instrumentalities of interstate commerce under the meaning of the act. The attorneys for the telegraphers cited against this contention pleas that telegraphers are made coemployes of trainmen by railroads in defending damage suits brought for injuries. The penalty for violation of the Erdman law is a fine of from $100 to $1,000 for each offense.

As a token of their high esteem for him, and as remembrance of the two years he spent in Richmond, the men in the employ of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad in Richmond, yesterday gave to Mr. P. J. Russell, former superintendent of this district of the road, a very handsome silver service.

The service, which was solid silver, contained five piecos, and on each pieco the monogram of the retiring superintendent was engraved.

Mr. J. R. Livesay, trainmaster of the road, made the presentation speech. He dwelt upon the high regard in which Mr. Russell was held by every man with whom he had come in contact, and said that it was a source of deep regret to the Richmonders that the connections which had been so pleasant were about to be severed.

Hundreds of Cases of Rabies in Four Western Counties of Massachusetts.

D. Pierce, agent of the State Cattle Bu stance suspicion of infection with rables was confirmed.

About 100 so-oalled mad dogs have been killed, and it is estimated that 600 other dogs have been shot in Western Massachusotis within a few weeks as a precautionary measure.

So uncommon have authenticated cames of hables been that at the outset of the epidemic dog-lovers ridiculed the stories. B. H. Lethrop, of Springicid, a prominent sportsman, and a former Democratic candidate for Congress, inserted an advertisement in local newspapers, offering a reward of $100 for an authenticated case of the rables.

The causes or primary sources of rables are matters concerning which the State Cattle Bureau has no theories to offer. Competent veterinarians are convinced that from the single Springfield dog which visited Adams the epidemic spread through Great Barrington, Lee, Externont, Sheffield, Mt. Washington, Dalton and other Berkshire towns. In Hampden county, Westfield, Granville, Springfield, Holyoke, West Springield and Agawam were visited by rabld dogs, which also invaded Conway and South Deerfield, in Franklin county. About sixty persons have been bitten, but there have been no fatalities, owing to their prompt resort to treatment. In a number of cases, however, it is too early to determine the result of the anti-rable toxin. The toxin is, according to medical statistics, effective in ninety-eight per cent. of the cases in which it is used.

An Art That is a Duty.

An Art That is a Duty.

Nobody who enjoys, and is accustomed to indulge, the pleasure of sea or freshwater bathing, can be oxcused for neglecting to acquire the art of swimming. This is the season when reports are so frequent of the death by drowning of the bather who, although wholly unacquainted with the art of swimming, contures beyond his depth in the water or deliberately pluages into deep places on the "dare" of a silly companion.

It is astonishing to discover how large a preportion of the whole number of persons that frequent the sea or lake slore for bathing do not know how to swim, and who apparently have no intention ever to devote serious effort to intention ever to devote serious effort in the same and the sea of the same and the same an President Harvis Jordan to hear_evidence that certain officers of the Cotton

Of the many thousands of wealthy men in New York the great majority live honorable and cleanly lives, have as associates men and women of like character and are more than usually qualified to be wise advisors and safe companions of youth. Ninety-five per cent, of these men are never known by name to the general reader. There is apparently no limit to individual taste in dross, though it would be rather difficult to outdo a gentleman who was seen a few days ago in the Bayswater road. He was wearing a pair of white flannel trousers, a violet shirt, a flaming scarlet tie, a bright blue packet, a pearl-colored walstcoat, a pair of yellow boots and a black silk hat. Ho was not a Christy minstrol, but a more or less ordinary citizen.

As for the men's shops, their windows are a riot of color. Here one may see waistcoats with crossbars of vivid green and no less vivid white on a gray ground and caps with colossal checks. The ties form not a feast, but an orgy of color. Some of them are "shot" until ione thinks of Naro's famous mullet of vermillion wing in an esciasy of gaver. The crud-

Some of the latest designs in shirts literally blaze. Some of the more modest are light green, with a subtle billious tinge worked in, and ornamented with dots, while a light purples material, also dotted, thrusts literif forward to suggest the background of an early Jan Van Beers. The chie thing is evidently to make the handkerchief match the shirt. Until this year men were generally content to use a white handkerchief with perhaps a border of color. Now the handkerchief is all border, and if there is any suggestion of white at all it is a is any suggestion of white at all it is a

Dark Days in San Francisco.

Despite the many things written to the contrary, these are gloomy days in San Francisco. The disposition to leave the city continues, and while optimistic people claim that there are more than 100,000 persons there now, others believe that 70,000 would be usearer the mark. No official effort has been made to get at the water the trayers. An early beginning the 70,000 would be nearer the mark. No official effort has been made to got at the exact figures. An early boom in real estate has quite subsided. The strike of the coast sailors, the plumbers and the truck drivers has proved a most discouraging element in the situation. Still further to depress the outlook, landlords are raising rents, merchants are raising prices, and the cost of building material is doubling. Meanwhile Seattle is reaping great advantage from San Trancisco's disaster, and is going ahead with great strides. Oakland is also prospering, and her Ausiness leaders are trying to get a lot of San Francisco's business, on the cialm that Oakland has the water frontage and the railroad facilities. The problem of the great relief fund at San Francisco is still most climent to handle, and the many compileations of the situation increase rather than diminish.—Springfield. Republican.
